

Denver Church creates “Gift a Light” program

Most Precious Blood Catholic Church raises donations to send Nokero lights to those living without electricity.

Our customer: Most Precious Blood is a Catholic church located in Denver, Colorado.

The Situation: Most Precious Blood was looking for a charitable project for their congregation. Through their own research, they discovered that many children worldwide study by kerosene lanterns. They wanted to cost-effectively solve that problem.

The Solution: Most Precious Blood Church selected Nokero as a partner because of Nokero’s reputation for high-quality, affordably priced solar lights. The church then created the “Gift a Light” program - a monthly fundraising campaign for solar lights. Most Precious Blood teamed with another non-profit to distribute the lights in the Caribbean and Central America.

The Results: Most Precious Blood Catholic Church has donated nearly 2,000 Nokero solar lights. Each solar light improves approximately five lives, resulting in 10,000 people benefiting from clean, renewable energy. The program has been embraced by the congregation and is now being extended to other parishes.

“It makes you feel good knowing that folks will take Nokero lights home and replace their kerosene lamps and will no longer have to breathe those toxic fumes, will save 25% of their income, and be safe. It’s very gratifying.”

- Vince Roldan, Most Precious Blood Parishioner
